FORK'S HOTEL,
GEORGE W. MAUGER, Proprietor.

The above well-known hotel has recently undergone the most extensive internal arrangements, and the proprietor announces to his former customers and the travelling public that his accomodations for the comfort of his guests are second to none in the country. His table will always be found supplied, not only with substantial food, but with all the delicacies of the season. His wines and liquors (except that popular beverage known as "Mellenry"), purchased direct from the importing houses, are entirely pure, and free from all poisonous drugs. He is thankful for the liberal patronage in the past, and will continue to deserve it in the future.

Choice Poetry.

The Closing Scene.

BY THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

The following is pronounced by the London Westminster Review to be unquestionably the finest American poem ever written.

Within the sober realms of the leafless trees,
The russet year inhaled the dreamy air;
Like some tanned reaper in his hours of ease,
When all the fields are lying brown and bare.

The gray barns looking from their hazy hills,
O'er the dun waters widening in the vales,
Sent down the air a greeting to the mills,
On the dull thunder of alternate flails.

All sights were mellowed, and all sounds subdued,
The hills seemed further, and the stream sang low—
As in a dream the distant woodman hewed
His winter log with many a muffled blow,

The embattled forests, erewhile armed with gold,
Their banners bright with every martial hue,
Now stood like some sad, beaten host of old,
Withdrawn afar in Time's remotest blue.

On sombre wings the vulture tried his flight;
The dove scarce heard his singing mate's complaint;
And, like a star slow drowning in the light,
The village church-vane seemed to pale and faint.

The sentinel cock upon the hill-side crew—
Crew thrice—and all was stiller than before;
Silent, till some replying warder blew
His alien horn, and then was heard no more.

Where erst the jay within the elm's tall crest,
Made garrulous trouble round her unfledged young;
And where oriole hung her swaying nest,
By every light wind like a censer swung;

Where sung the noisy martins of the eaves,
The busy swallows circling ever near—
Foreboding, as the rustic mind believes,
An early harvest and a plenteous year;

Where every bird that waked the vernal feast
Shook the sweet slumber from its wings at morn;
To warm the reaper of the rosy east
All now was sunless, empty and forlorn.

Alone from out the stubble, piped the quail;
And crooked the crow through all the dreary gloom;
Alone, the pheasant, drumming in the vale,
Made echo in the distant cottage loom.

There was no bud, no bloom upon the bowers;
The spiders moved their thin shrouds night by night;
The thistle-down, the only ghosts of flowers,
Sailed slowly by—passed noiseless out of sight.

Amid all this—in this most dreary air,
And where the woodbine shed upon the porch
Its crimson leaves, as if the year stood there,
Firing the floor with its inverted torch.

Amid all this—the centre of the scene,
The white-haired matron, with monotonous tread,
Plied the swift wheel, and with her joyless mien
Sat like a fate, and watched the flying thread.

She had known sorrow. He had walked with her,
Oft supped, and broke with her the ashen crust,
And in the dead leaves still she heard the stir
Of his thick mantle trailing in the dust.

While yet her cheek was bright with summer bloom,
Her country summoned and she gave her all;
And twice war bowed to her his sable plume—
Re-gave the sword to rust upon the wall.

Re-gave the sword, but not the hand that drew
And struck for liberty the dying blow;
Nor him who, to his sire and country true,
Fell 'mid the ranks of the invading foe.

Long but not loud, the drooping wheel went on
Like the low murmur of a hive at noon;
Long, but not loud, the memory of the gone
Breathed through her lips a sad and tremulous tone.

At last the thread was snapped—her head was bowed,
Life dropped the distaff through her hands serene;
And loving neighbors smoothed her careful shroud,
While death and winter closed the autumn scene.

Miscellaneous.

THE INVISIBLE EYE.

FROM THE FRENCH OF ERCKMANN-CHATRIAN.

About this time (said Christian,) poor as a church-mouse, I took refuge in the room of an old house in Minnesanger Street, Nuremberg, and made my nest in the corner of the garret.

I was compelled to walk over my straw bed to reach the window, but this window was in the gable-end, and the view from it was magnificent, both town and country being spread out before me.

I could see the cats, walking gravely in the gutters; the storks, their beaks filled with frogs, carrying nourishment to their ravenous brood; the pigeons, springing from their cots, their tails spread like fans, hovering over the streets.

In the evening, when the bells called the world to the Angelus, with my elbows upon the edge of the roof, I listened to their melancholy chimes; I watched the windows as, one by one, they were lighted up; the good burghers smoking their pipes on the sidewalks; the young girls, in their red skirts, with their pitchers under their arms, laughing and chatting around the fountain "Saint Sebalt." Insensibly all this faded away, the bats commenced their rapid course, and I retired to my mattress in sweet peace and tranquillity.

The old curiosity-seller, Toubac, knew the way to my little lodging as well as I did, and was not afraid to climb the ladder. Every week his ugly head, adorned with a reddish cap, raised the trap-door, his fingers grasped the ledge, and he cried out, in a nasal tone:

"Well, well, Master Christian, have you anything?"

To which I replied:

"Come in. Why in the devil don't you come in? I am just finishing a little land-scape, and you must tell me what you think of it."

Then his great back, seeming to elongate, grew up, even to the roof, and the good man laughe: silently.

I must do justice to Toubac: he never haggled with me about prices; he bought all my paintings at fifteen florins, one with the other, and sold them again for forty each. "This was an honest Jew!"

I began to grow fond of this mode of existence, and to find new charms in it day by day.

Just at this time, the city of Nuremberg was agitated by a strange and mysterious event. Not far from my dormer-window, a little to the left, stood the Inn Bœuf-Gras, an old auberge much patronized throughout the country. Three or four wagons, filled with sacks, were always drawn up before the door, where the rustic drivers were in the habit of stopping, on their way to the market, to take their morning draught of wine.

The gable-end of the inn was distinguished by its peculiar form. It was very narrow, pointed, and, on two sides, cut in teeth, like a saw. The carvings were strangely grotesque, interwoven and ornamenting the cornices and surrounding the windows; but the most remarkable fact was, that the house opposite reproduced exactly the same sculptures, the same ornaments; even the sign-board, with its post and spiral of iron, was exactly copied.

One might have thought that these two ancient houses reflected each other. Behind the inn, however, was a grand old oak, whose sombre leaves darkened the stones of the roof, while the other house stood out in bold relief against the sky. To complete the description, this old building was as silent and dreary as the Inn Bœuf-Gras was noisy and animated.

On one side, a crowd of merry drinkers were continually entering in and going out, singing, tripping, cracking their whips; on the other profound silence reigned.

Perhaps, once or twice during the day, the heavy door seemed to open of itself, to allow a little old woman to go out, with her back almost in a semicircle, her dress fitting tight about her hips, an enormous basket on her arm, and her hand contracted against her breast.

It seemed to me that I saw at a glance, as I looked upon her, a whole existence of good works and pious meditations.

The physiognomy of this old woman had struck me more than once: her little green eyes, long, thin nose, the immense bouquets of flowers on her shawl, which must have been at least a hundred years old, the withered smile which puckered her cheeks into a cockade, the lace of her bonnet falling down to her eyebrows—all this was fantastic, and interested me much. Why did this old woman live in this great deserted house? I wished to explore the mystory.

One day, as I paused in the street and followed her with my eyes, she turned suddenly and gave me a look, the horrible expression of which I know not how to paint; made three or four hideous grimaces, and then, letting her palsied head fall upon her breast, drew her great shawl closely around her, and advanced to the heavy door, behind which I saw her disappear.

"She's an old fool!" I said to myself, in a sort of stupor. My faith, it was the height of folly in me to be interested in her!

However, I would like to see her grimace again! old Toubac would willingly give me fifteen florins if I could paint it for him.

I must confess that these pleasantries of mine did not entirely reassure me.

The hideous glance, which the old shrew had given me, pursued me everywhere. More than once, while climbing the almost perpendicular ladder to my loft, feeling my clothing caught on some point, I trembled from head to foot, imagining that the old wretch was hanging to the tail of my coat, in order to destroy me.

Toubac, to whom I related my adventure, was far from laughing at it; indeed, he assumed a grave and solemn air.

"Master Christian," said he, "if the old woman wants you, take care! Her teeth are small, pointed, and of marvelous whiteness, and that is not natural at her age. She has an 'evil eye.' Children flee from her, and the people of Numremberg call her 'Fledermausse.'"

I admired the clear, sagacious intellect of the Jew, and his words gave me cause for reflection.

Several weeks passed away, during which I often encountered Fledermausse without any alarming consequences. My fears were dissipated, and I thought of her no more.

But, an evening came, during which, while sleeping very soundly, I was awakened by a strange harmony. It was a kind of vibration, so sweet, so melodious, that the whispering of the breeze among the leaves can give but a faint idea of its charm.

For a long time I listened intently, with my eyes wide open, and holding my breath, so as not to lose a note. At last I looked toward the window, and saw two wings fluttering against the glass. I thought, at first that it was a bat, caught in my room; but, the moon rising at that instant, I saw the wings of a magnificent butterfly of the night delineated upon her shining disk. Their vibrations were often so rapid, that they could not be distinguished; then they reposed, extended upon the glass, and their frail fibres were again brought to view.

This misty apparition, coming in the midst of the universal silence, opened my heart to all sweet emotions. It seemed to me that an airy sylph, touched with a sense of my solitude, had come to visit me, and this idea melted me almost to tears.

"Be tranquil, sweet captive, be tranquil," said I; "your confidence shall not be abused. I will not keep you against your will. Return to heaven and to liberty." I then opened my little window. The night was calm, and millions of stars were glittering in the sky. For a moment, I contemplated this sublime spectacle, and words of prayer and praise came naturally to my lips; but, judge of my amazement, when, lowering my eyes, I saw a man hanging from the cross beam of the sign of the Bœuf-Gras, the hair dishevelled, the arms stiff, the legs elongated to a point, and casting their shadows down the street!

The immobility of this figure, under the moon's rays, was terrible. I felt my tongue freezing, my teeth clinched. I was about to cry out in terror, when, by some incomprehensible, mysterious attraction, my glance fell below and I distinguished, confusedly, the old woman crouched at her window in the midst of dark shadows, and contemplating the dead man with an air of diabolic satisfaction

Then I had a vertigo of terror. All my strength abandoned me, and, retreating to the wall of my loft, I sank down and became insensible.

I do not know how long this sleep of death continued. When restored to consciousness, I saw that it was broad day. The mists of the night had penetrated to my garret, and deposited their fresh dew upon my hair, and the confused murmurs of the street ascended to my little lodging. I looked without. The burgomaster and his secretary were stationed at the door of the inn, and remained there a long time; crowds of people came and went, and paused to look in; then recommenced their course The good women of the neighborhood, who were sweeping before their doors, looked on from afar, and talked gravely with each other.

At last, a litter, and, upon this litter a body, covered with a linen cloth, issued from the inn, carried by two men. They descended to the street, and the children, on their way to school, ran behind them.

All the people drew back as they advanced.

The window opposite was still open; the end of a rope floated from the cross-beam.

I had not dreamed. I had, indeed, seen the butterfly of the night; I had seen the man hanging, I had seen Fledermausse.

That day Toubac made me a visit, and, as his great nose appeared on a level with the floor he exclaimed:

"Master Christian, have you nothing to sell?"

I did not hear him. I was seated upon my one chair, my hands clasped upon my knees, and my eyes fixed before me.

Toubac, surprised at my inattention repeated, in a louder voice:

"Master Christian, Master Christian!" Then, striding over the sill, he advanced and struck me on the shoulder.

"Well, well, what is the matter now?"

"Ah, is that you, Toubac?"

"Eh, parbleu! I rather think so; are you ill?"

"No. I am only thinking."

"What in the devil are you thinking about?"

"Of the man who was hanged."

"Oh, oh!" cried the curiosity-vender. "You have seen him, then? The poor boy! What a singular history! The third in the same place."

"How the third?"

"Ah, yes! I ought to have warned you; but it is not too late. There will certainly be a fourth, who will follow the example of the others. Il n'y a que le premier pas qui coute."

Saying this, Toubac took a seat on the corner of my trunk, struck his match-box, lighted his pipe, and blew three or four powerful whiffs of smoke, with a meditative air.

"My faith," said he, "I am not fearful; but, if I had full permission to pass the night in that chamber, I should much prefer to sleep elsewhere.

"Listen, Master Christian. Nine or ten months ago, a good man, of Tubingen, wholesale dealer in furs, dismounted at the Inn Bœuf-Gras. He called for supper; he ate well; he drank well; and was finally conducted to that room in the third story—it is called the Green Room. Well, the next morning he was found hanging to the cross-beam of the sign-board.

"Well, that might do for once; nothing could be said."

"Every proper investigation was made, and the stranger was buried at the bottom of the garden. But, look you, about six months afterwards, a brave soldier from Neustadt arrived; he had received his final discharge, and was rejoicing in the thought of returning to his native village. During the whole evening, while emptying his wine-cups, he spoke fondly of his little cousin, who was waiting to marry him. At last, this big monsieur was conducted to this room—the Green Room—and, the same night, the watchman, passing down the street Minnesanger, perceived something hanging to the cross-beam; he raised his lantern, and lo! it was the soldier, with his final discharge in a bow on his left hip, and his hands gathered up to the seam of his pantaloons, as if on a parade."

"'Truth to say, this is extraordinary,' cried the burgomaster; 'the devil's to pay.' Well, the chamber was much visited; the walls were replastered; and the dead man was sent to Neustadt.

"The registrar wrote this marginal note:

"'Died of apoplexy.'"

"All Nuremberg was enraged against the innkeeper. There were many, indeed, who wished to force him to take down his iron cross-beam, under the pretext that it inspired people with dangerous ideas: but you may well believe that old Nichel Schmidt would not lend his ear to this proposition.

"'This cross-beam,' said he, 'was placed here by my grandfather; it has born the sign of Bœuf-Gras for one hundred and fifty years, from father to son; it harms no one, not even the hay-wagons which pass beneath, for it is thirty feet above them. Those who don't like it can turn their heads aside, and not see it.'"

"Well, gradually the town calmed down, and, during several months, no new event agitated it. Unhappily, a student of Heidelberg, returning to the university, stopped, day before yesterday, at the Inn Bœuf-Gras, and asked for lodging. He was the son of a minister of the gospel.

"How could any one suppose that the son of a pastor could conceive the idea of hanging himself on the cross-beam of a sign-board, because a big monsieur and an old soldier had done so? We must admit, Master Christian, that the thing was not probable; these reasons would not have seemed sufficient to myself, or to you."

"Enough, enough!" I exclaimed; "this is too horrible! I see a frightful mystery involved in all this. It is not the cross-beam; it is not the room.—"

"What! Do you suspect the innkeeper, the most honest man in the world, and belonging to one of the oldest families in Nuremberg?"

"No, no; may God preserve me from indulging in unjust suspicions! but there is an abyss before me, into which I scarcely dare glance."

"You are right," said Toubac, astonished at the violence of my excitement. "We will speak of other things. A propos, Master Christian, where is our landscape of 'Saint Odille?'"

This question brought me back to the world of realities. I showed the old man the painting I had just completed. The affair was soon concluded, and Toubac, well satisfied, descended the ladder, entreating me to think no more of the student of Heidelberg.

I would gladly have followed my good friend's counsel; but, when the devil once mixes himself up in our concerns, it is not easy to disembarrass ourselves of him.

In my solitary hours, all these events were reproduced with frightful distinctness in my mind.

"This old wretch," I said to myself, "is the cause of all; she alone has conceived these crimes, and has consummated them. But by what means? Has she had recourse to cunning alone or has she obtained the intervention of invisible powers?" I walked to and fro in my retreat. An inward voice cried out: "It is not in vain that Providence permitted you to see Fledermausse contemplating the agonies of her victim. It is not in vain that the soul of the poor young man came in the form of a butterfly of the night to awake you. No, no; all this was not accidental, Christian. The heavens impose upon you a terrible mission. If you do not accomplish it, tremble lest you fall into the hands of the old murderess! Perhaps at this moment, she is preparing her snares in the darkness."

During several days, these hideous images followed me without intermission. I lost my sleep; it was impossible for me to do any thing; my brush fell from my hand; and, horrible to confess, I found myself sometimes gazing at the cross-beam with a sort of complacency. At last I could endure it no longer, and one evening I descended the ladder, and hid myself behind the door of Fledermausse, hoping

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY MORNING DEC. 3, 1869.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation of any paper published in Northern Pennsylvania, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

GOLD has fallen to 122, a lower point than was reached in 1863. This decline is partly attributable to the announcement of the Secretary of the Treasurys decision to sell eleven millions of gold in December, and partly the reaction from the panic in September. Brokers in New York are selling at from ¾ to ½ below the price at which they bought, which may be taken as evidence of their belief in a still further decline.

GOV. GEARY having signed the death warrant of Dr. Schœppe lately convicted of the murder of Miss Steinecke at Carlisle, it is to be hoped that, in view of the many doubtful circumstances which surround the case, he will at least grant a respite until somewhat of the mystery is cleared up. It is a fearful thing that the gallows should claim an innocent victim. The press is almost unanimously of the opinion that there should be no undue and unseemly haste.

A VERY funny fight is going on in the Navy Department. Admiral Porter who was the virtual Secretary of the Navy, when Borie nominally held that position, has issued what purports to be the Annual Report of the Navy Department. This document is ignored and disavowed by Mr. Robeson, but Porter still continues to send forth instalments, stating that they are genuine. The question now is "who is the Secretary of the Navy ?"

GRANT has a happy faculty of accumulation; even his charity tends to that end. Sometime since he wrote to friends in New York that Gen. Sherman was going to Washington to live, but was not wealthy enough to support the style his rank demanded, and stating that he would be glad to have a sum made up for him. Admiring friends went promptly to work and shortly afterwards purchased of Grant his house, which cost $30,000, for the snug sum of $65,000! which is a little profit of $35,000. Verily charity begins at home.

ADVICES from Memphis give accounts of serious riots in Mississippi between the negroes and citizens. In Sunflower county, a fight occurred in which thirteen negroes were killed and their leader captured. The negroes have threatened to burn the town of Water Valley and troops have been sent for their protection. Truly do the negro troops fight nobly! It is a pity that some of their Puritanical admirers could not be compelled to reside for a time in Mississippi—say at Water Valley.

ELEVEN persons will expiate the crime of murder at the gallows in this country during the coming month. Unless Executive clemency should intervene, the extreme penalty of the law will be inflicted upon the following persons: Owen Hand, to be executed at Brooklyn, L. I.; John Fields, at Williamsport, Pa.; Zachary Taylor(colored), at Butler, Pa.; Dr. Paul Schœppe, at Carlisle, Pa.; Antoine Maurer, at New City, N.Y.; William Burke, at Jamaica, L. I.; Joseph Messner, at Rochester, N. Y.; Daniel Walsh, at Chicago, Ill.; Robert H. Goldsborough, in Sussex county, Del.; Max Klengler, at St. Louis, Mo.; Benjamin Farhout, in Wyoming county, N. Y. In the case of Dr. Schœppe, at least, it is to be hoped that a reprieve will be granted.

THE appointment by President Grant of Mr. J. Russel Jones as Minister to Brussels, occasioned some surprise, at the time, but is fully explained now. The Chicago Times says: "People who are still wondering why President Grant appointed Chevalier Jones to the mission at Brussels may have less cause to wonder when they learn that in book 583 of deeds, at page 452 (to be seen in the Recorder's office in this city), there is recorded a deed from J. Russell Jones to U. S. Grant, conveying about one hundred acres of land for the nominal consideration of one dollar. The deed was filed for record on the 26th day of May, 1869."

THE blundering policy of the administration seems likely to precipitate a war with Spain. The recent seizure of gun boats in New York alleged to have been built for the use and service of the Spanish government, is rather proof of the vacillating and uncertain mind of the executive, than evidence of national good faith. If it had been determined to seize these vessels, why was it not done when they were first placed upon the stocks? International rights and duties, however seem to be but imperfectly understood at the seat of government.

A suit has been instituted against the United States by the builder of the vessels who claims them as his private property.

If Gen. Grant really wishes to entail another war upon this tax-burdened country he is certainly taking the direct course to that end, but we very much doubt whether the National honor will be exalted in the opinions of European nations.

A NUMBER of prominent New York merchants having been "interviewed" by zealous newspaper reporters, there has been developed a very curious difference of opinion as to the expected crisis in mercantile and monetary affairs. Many of those whose views have weight, and whose transactions are enormous, declare that the present dulness in trade is only the usual lull which occurs between the fall and winter seasons, and that instead of hard times they look forward to a large trade in January. Others, again, whose opinions are entitled to equal consideration, take an entirely different view of matters, and predict a crash as formidable as that of 1857. With such widely differing testimony coming from equally reliable sources it is impossible to arrive at any definite conclusion. It seems to be admitted that specie payments will not be immediately resumed, and that there will be another issue of paper money.

THE TRIALS.

REMARKS UPON THE EVIDENCE OF N. L. CAMPBELL:—What we have already shown proves the unreliability of this witness and the worthless character of his testimony. But we are not quite done with him. He belongs to a class of witnesses who commonly appear in political prosecutions ready to testify to many extraordinary declarations made by the accused. They are either regular informers who swear for a reward, or persons whose zeal is whetted by private enmity or party passion, and who desire to obtain a wretched distinction and the commendation and favor of men in power. They are capital instruments of persecution and injustice whenever the laws permit their introduction into courts of justice or whenever the laws are trampled under foot and arbitrary tribunals assume jurisdiction over the citizen. Campbell was called to prove seditious language the utterance of which by the defendant could not constitute any distinct offence unless under a sedition law such as that which characterized and disgraced the administration of the elder Adams. His testimony however, was well calculated (and was intended) to create prejudice against the defendant and secure his conviction. There had been a dispute and warm words between the witness and the defendant concerning the attempt of the former to obtain volunteers from Fishingcreek to fill the quota of Centre and the main body of the discourse between them had been confined to that subject. Yet Campbell denied that any such dispute had taken place, substituting for it in his narrative extraordinary and violent declarations of M'Henry against the sending of men to the war at all, and declaring that resistance to the draft was effectually organized. Whereas, in point of fact M'Henry was anxious to have the quota of his own township filled (and he assisted in having it done) and was earnestly objecting only to the taking of men away from Fishingcreek to fill the quota of another district. Campbell (in his testimony) put into his mouth the false and impossible declaration that the men who volunteered for the war ought to be shot when they went South or when they returned!

The witness no doubt thought he could testify to what he pleased with complete immunity from all punishment or responsibility. For he was to deliver his tale before a Military Commission, eighty miles from his own home and nearly a hundred miles from Stillwater where the conversation with M'Henry occurred, and he would be perfectly safe against home scrutiny and against all contradiction. More than that, if he had due information he knew that for any false swearing before the Commission he could never be called to account or punished in a regular court of justice.

But with reference to the possibility of his being contradicted, he was mistaken. There was some casual delay during the progress of the trial; a little morsel of time intervened between his examination and the conclusion of the case, and there was railroad communication between Harrisburg and Columbia county. In haste, his neighbor Andrew Freas and the by standers at the Stillwater conversation were brought down to Harrisburg, were put upon the stand as witnesses, and Campbell was crushed! There was an end of him as a witness entitled to any confidence whatever, and the case went off upon grounds wholly independent of his testimony.

THE WITNESS JONAS DOTY:—This witness who resides in Fishingcreek township was called to prove a conversation with Daniel M'Henry at the breaking out of the war, three years and a half before the trial. It was an old discourse, but it had certainly lost nothing by being kept and nursed in the mind of the witness for that long period of time. During the progress of M'Henry's trial Professor Pealer came to him and said, if he(M'Henry)"would give him $10 he would 'stove off' Doty's evidence." He added: "you know he" (Doty) "is a clear-headed old cuss, and he has a damaging story to tell." M'Henry replied, that he wanted to hear Doty's story and he would not give him (Pealer) one dime for his friendly services in "stoving" it off. When Doty was called, he said, that "at the breaking out of the rebellion," M'Henry in conversation with him "about raising men to fight the south," declared, "that there could be enough raised to kill them off before they got to Bloomsburg." This very improbable story being objected to by the defense as too remote and ancient was ruled out and rejected by the Military Commission, and thereupon Mr. Doty retired from the case with his malice ungratified. His appearance was brief, but it was not without a certain sort of evil distinction. Nobody made $10 out of his stale and improbable story and his testimony was thrown back in his face as worthless. It was no doubt a misrepresentation of an actual discourse, and coming from a political opponent, full of zeal and influenced by antipathy instead of an attachment to justice, it deserved that summary and contemptuous treatment which it received.

AT Lexington, Kentucky, Tuesday evening, Nov. 23d, a young man, named J. W. Alexander, offered himself as a candidate for the honors of a Good Templar's Lodge. As a part of the ceremony of initiation he was offered a glass of water. He drew back with a shudder, and the recollection of the fact that in August last he was severely bitten by a dog, flashed with terrible intensity across his mind. The next day he was out, but the memory haunted him, and he said to a friend that he would go home and go to bed and die. He went home and to bed, and in spite of drugs and nursing, that horrible malady, hydrophobia, rushed rapidly to its conclusion in death. Wednesday afternoon he went into his first spasm. Wednesday night he foamed at the mouth and yelped as a dog, and his paroxysms continued and grew in intensity. Strong men held him, and powerful anæsthetics were administered. He begged to be shot, and prayed for death. Thursday, about 2 P. M., he died.

MISSISSIPPI ELECTION.—Great anxiety is felt for the result of the Mississippi contest which took place on Tuesday and Wednesday last. Advices from there predict a very heavy vote. Alcorn is said to be getting a majority of the colored voters. Judge Dent telegraphs that he is sure of election, but cannot place any estimate on his majority.

The Child Murder near Ringtown.

OUR readers doubtless remember the facts in this case published by us two weeks ago. We have since heard a few additional details which may prove interesting. It would seem that Nankervis and a friend left England at the same time, each having seduced a young woman there, and located at Shickshinny where Nankervis's friend had a brother living. Nankervis preached or exhorted at different private houses in the neighborhood but does not seem to have been a regularly ordained minister. In process of time he was employed as Pastor of the Centralia Methodist Church.

The girls who had been betrayed, however, were not content to bear their shame at home and in silence, and having obtained some clue as to the whereabouts of the faithless lovers started in search of them, and after much difficulty reached Shickshinny. Nankervis's friend (whose name we omit for the present,) was still working there, and at once married the woman he had seduced. The other started for Centralia in search of Nankervis, and found him as stated. It was said they were then married, but of this we have grave doubts. They then returned to Rupert, where as our readers have been informed, the, child, a fine-looking boy, was born. The fact of their returning to Ringtown and the subsequent murder of the child, we have also noted.

We now learn, though we cannot vouch for the truth of the information that the woman has turned State's evidence, and says that after failing in their efforts to get the child adopted, they went to Hell Hollow, a fitting place for the commission of such a monstrous tragedy. Taking the child from the mother Nankervis laid the infant down and proposed to abandon it. This she refused to do. He took it from her the second time, and taking a stone crushed its head, and threatened to kill her in case she disclosed what he had done. We have already mentioned the subsequent arrest of the parties and their being held for trial in the Schuylkill county Courts. The woman we are informed is now at large.

If guilty, hanging is too good for this man. Murder is always horrible, but when committed on a helpless, innocent babe, by a man in the garb of a minister of the gospel, the crime is doubly awful.

A FOUL MESS of immorality, to which adultery and divorce were incidents, culminated in an attempt at assassination at the Tribune office on Thursday evening of last week. Mr. Albert D. Richardson, of that journal, was shot by a Mr. McFarland. The remarkable relations between these parties were stated in a card which the former published some months ago. Richardson was engaged to marry Mrs. McFarland as soon as she could get a divorce from her husband! He, it seems, intercepted a letter to her from Richardson, a letter which Richardson himself, with charming simplicity, calls, "Such a letter as one would naturally write to a woman he expected to marry." A divorce suit, it seems, was going on somewhere—without any notice to the husband. The course of true love never, says Shakespeare, does run smooth, and McFarland has now interposed an obstacle by shooting Richardson, in the office of the Tribune. That journal must be quite at a loss to account for all this depravity without imputing it to slavery. Such an incident happening at the South would have served the Tribune as an endless theme for denunciation of that whole section.

Like Sickles, and other eminent moralists, the Tribune man was an intimate friend of President Grant. Here is McFarland's account of them, as published in the Sun of yesterday:

Grant and Richardson are very great friends; and Grant, I hear, would do anything for Richardson. Richardson used to accompany Grant everywhere; and he is said to have great power over him. A short time ago some friends of Richardson called upon me and asked me upon what terms I would settle the case. I told them that I had to take an action for damages, as that was the only remedy left me. They said they would ensure me $10,000 and a foreign mission if I would abandon the suit; but I told them that I wanted my wife. I suppose they could have persuaded the President to give me a consulship to please Richardson, and put me out of the way.

We since learn that Mrs. McFarland has been married to Mr. Richardson.

EATING WITH A FORK.—This fashion, and the importance attached to it, proves that "Fashion" is a tyrant, and many inconsiderately become slaves to it. Fashions that can be followed without breach of good morals, manners, or inconvenience, may with propriety be followed. But can persons, as a general rule feed themselves with a fork in preference to a knife?

The writer, at the table of fashionable people, has been pleased, in casting a sly eye around, to see old people feed with the knife when most convenient, and amused to see younger ones try to convey fine food to the mouth with the fork. After piling and packing, the attempt to elevate failed for want of cohesion. After repeated attempts of the kind, the fork was impatiently dropped and the knife used! Can any one tell why persons should incommode themselves to follow such an inconvenient style without any benefit except to please an inconsistent tyrant, fashion? Why should a person take a fork and crush pie to pieces instead of cutting it with a knife and conveying it to the mouth with either knife or fork, as most convenient? If the mouth polutes a knife, why not a fork or a spoon just as much? or a cup or a saucer from which one drinks? Will fashion invent some machine by which liquids can be injected into the mouth without polluting the cup or saucer?—Rural New Yorker.

SINGULAR ARITHMETICAL FACT.—Any number of figures you wish to multiply by 5 will give the same result if divided by 2, a much quicker operation, but you must remember to annex a cipher to the answer; when there is a remainder, whatever it may be, annex a 5 to the answer. Multiply 464 by 5, and the answer will be 2320; dividing the same number by 2, you have 232, and there being no remainder, you annex a cipher. Now take 357 and multiply by 5 and there is 1785; divide the same number by 2, and you have 178 and a remainder; you therefore, place a 5 at the end of the line and the result is again 1785.

Columbia County Teachers' Association.

A meeting of this Association was held at Millville, Nov. 13th, 1869. Mr. Wynkoop was appointed President, and Lettie J. Vanhorn, Secretary.

An opening address was delivered by Mr. Wm. Burgess, in which he spoke at length of Teacher's Associations, and the advantages derived through them. At the close of the address, Mr. Barkley asked: "How can we get the attendance of all teachers at the meetings of the Association, and how may the exercises be conducted with the most interest?" A discussion followed which closed upon a motion of Prof. Walker; "That a committee of five be appointed to prepare a programme of exercises for a meeting of the Columbia County Teachers' Association, to be held on the 18th day of December, at Catawissa." The President appointed Prof. Walker, Sup't Barkley, Miss Freeze, Miss Vannatta and Mrs. Wynkoop, as such committee.

Adjourned to meet at 1½ o'clock, P. M.

In the afternoon, addresses were delivered by Prof. Carver, and Prof. Walker; and essays were read by Mrs. Wynkoop, Mr. Burgess, and Miss Jennie Breece.

The committee appointed to prepare a programme for the next meetings, reported as follows:

1. They recommend that the time allowed for the opening address be thirty minutes; and that the time of the subsequent reports, essays, and addresses, (except the lectures of the evening,) be limited to fifteen minutes.

2. That the sessions of the Association be as follows, viz: from 10 to 12 o'clock, A. M.; from 1.30 to 4.30 P. M., and from 6.30 to 9, in the evening.

3. That the time allowed for organization, address of welcome and reply be limited to one hour; and that the opening address be delivered by Prof. Henry Carver, of Bloomsburg.

4. That the subsequent exercises be as follows:

11.30, DISCUSSION; Subject—Marking and Prizes.

Opened by Affirmative, Mr. Thos. Miller—Negative, Miss Maria Fenstermacher.

12, adjourn.

AFTERNOON.

1.30, REPORT; Subject—"Perfection the aim of teaching," by Mr. Joseph Garrison.

1.45, Discussion on the same subject. Opened by Miss Sue Thompson.

2, REPORT—Text books and how to use them, by Prof. F. M. Bates.

2.15, REPORT—How to teach reading. Prof. James Brown.

2.30, Discussion on the same subject. Opened by Prof. Wm. Burgess.

2.45, REPORT—Music in schools, by Mrs. I. O. Best.

3, Discussion on the same subject. Opened by Mr. Perry Delong.

3.15, Select readings by ——

3.35, Recess.

3.45, ESSAY—The playground and the teacher's relation to it, by Miss Mintie Haycock.

4, REPORT—Rewards and punishments, by Miss Jennie Breece.

4.15, Discussion on same subject. Opened by Mr. William Snyder.

4.30, Adjourn.

EVENING.

6.30, REPORT—The co-operation of parents, by Prof. E. J. Bowman.

7, LECTURE; Subject—"Optional," by Rev. D. J. Waller.

8, LECTURE; Subject—"Optional," by Prof. I. O. Best.

All of which is respectfully submitted. H. D. WALKER, Chairman, Com.

The report was adopted, after being amended by the substitution of Prof. Walker, for Prof. Carver to deliver the opening address, Prof. Carver not being certain that he could attend the meeting.

Though few teachers were present at the morning session, the afternoon session was well attended.

On motion, it was Iesolved, That the several editors of the county papers be requested to publish the proceedings of this meeting, together with the programme for the next meeting.

LETTIE J. VANHORN, Secretary.

Obituary.

THE following resolutions were unanimously adopted by Catawissa Lodge No. 328, I. O. G. T. at a special session of the Lodge Nov. 26, 1869.

Whereas, In the providence of God the angel of death has visited our lodge, and taken from our midst in the prime of her life, our worthy sister Elbina Roup, therefore be it

Resolved, That while we bow submissively to the will of Him who is "too wise to err and too merciful to be unkind," we sincerely regret the loss of our beloved sister, and deeply sympathize with her husband and friends and pray that Divine consolation may be abundantly imparted in this their hour of sad affliction.

Resolved, That in the death of sister Roup the lodge sustains the loss of a consistent faithful, and exemplary member.

Resolved, That as a token of our respect and esteem for our departed sister the Charter of the lodge be draped in morning for thirty days, and the members wear the usual badge of mourning for the same period.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in the county papers and "Key Stone Good Templar," and an attested copy be presented to the husband of the deceased.

Catawissa, Pa., Nov. 26, 1869.

Death of a Soldier.

HIRAM COOL, the subject of this notice, enlisted in the Catawissa Guards in the summer of 1862, and with the company was sent to meet the enemy upon the ever memorable field of Antietam, where on the 17th of Sept. he received a wound in the head; the ball entered his right eye and passed entirely through his head, from the effects of which he died at his home in Roaringcreek township Nov. 20, 1869.

As a soldier we are informed he shrunk from no duty, as a citizen he was highly esteemed, as a husband, father and friend he is mourned; but in his death they hope. He was a son of Phillip Cool Esq., dec'd., of Roaringcreek, and at the time of his death was thirty years old.

Thus one by one are the soldiers of the Republic being called from their posts of duty here to headquarters above. May they all be assigned to duty on the staff of the Captain of our salvation.

E. M. TEWKSBURY.

Catawissa Hills, Nov. 23, 1869.

COMPUTING INTEREST.—We give a new rule for computing interest, and it is so simple and so true that every banker, broker, merchant or clerk should post it up for reference. There being no such a thing as a fraction in it, there is scarcely any liability to error or mistake. By no other arithmetical process can the desired information be obtained by so few figures:

Six per Cent.—Multiply any given number of dollars by the number of days of interest desired, separate the right hand figures and divide by six, the result is the true interest on such sum for such number of days at six per cent.

Eight per Cent.—Multiply any given amount by the number of days upon which it is desired to ascertain the interest, and divide by forty-five, and the result will be the interest of such sum for the time required at eight per cent.

Ten per Cent.—Multiply the same as above and divide by thirty-six, and the result will show the rate of interest at ten per cent.

THE whole proceeds of the Concert, Festival and Fair, and Dinner, for the benefit of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in this place, will amount to nearly $750. The expenses incurred will probably reach $150. The whole affair was a decided success, and reflects credit upon the Executive Committee. The Chairman Mr. H. R. Bower, was indefatigable in his efforts, notwithstanding the many obstacles thrown in his way, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that his labors are duly appreciated by the members of the Order generally.—Berwick Gazette.

BRIDGE BROKEN DOWN.—The bridge over the canal, on Mill street, broke down on Thursday morning last, as Mr. David Blue was passing over it with a load of ore. Mr. Blue, horses, wagon and all, went down suddenly into the deep water. The wagon was broken, but Mr. Blue was little hurt, beyond a thorough drenching. He made his way out, and his horses were extricated from the debris and taken out by the crowd that soon assembled at the bridge.

The portion of the bridge broken down belongs to the borough, and the borough, we presume, must foot the bill of damages. The escape of Mr. Blue and his horses, is very remarkable. This is the second time that the canal bridge on Mill street has broken down. Better try an iron bridge.—Montour American.

THE official returns received at Springfield, Ill., show that the State Constitutional Convention will stand, politically, 44 Republicans and 41 Democrats.

IN a recent election in Little Rock, Ark., a negro marshal, a negro street commissioner, and five negro aldermen, out of eight members voted for, were elected.

T. J. LAWALT has been appointed Postmaster at Briarcreek, a new Post office, just established in this county.

He is sleeping calmly sleeping,
With the damp earth on his breast,
Loving ones are sadly weeping,
O'er his lowly place of rest;
He has left our circle broken,
Hope's bright star has set in night,
Yet we treasured many a token,
Of his spirit's upward flight.

When the death dew slowly gathered,
Gathered on his marble brow,
Then he faintly, sweetly murmured,
Christ is with me even now;
I am going home dear mother,
See the angels hov'ring nigh,
Let me go, my Saviour calleth,
I am not afraid to die.

Thus he fell asleep in Jesus,
And he lies in the grave,
Where the pale wild rose shall blossom,
And the drooping willow wave,
And beside that mossy hillock,
We will bend in silent prayer,
For perchance amid the zephyrs,
John's own spirit whispers there.

THE GREAT PICTORIAL ANNUAL.—Hostetter's United States Almanac for 1870, for distribution, gratis, throughout the United States and all civilized countries of the Western Hemisphere, will be published about the first of January, and all who wish to understand the true philosophy of health should read and ponder the valuable suggestions it contains. In addition to an admirable medical treatise on the causes, prevention and cure of a great variety of diseases, it embraces a large amount of information interesting to the merchant, the mechanic, the miner, the farmer, the planter, and professional man; and the calculations have been made for such meridians and latitudes as are most suitable for a correct and comprehensive National Calendar.

The nature, uses, and extraordinary sanitary effects of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS the staple tonic and alterative of more than half the Christian world, are fully set forth in its pages, which are also interspersed with pictorial illustrations, valuable recipes for the household and farm, humorous anecdotes, and other instructive and amusing reading matter, original and selected. Among the Annuals to appear with the opening of the year, this will be one of the most useful, and may be had for the asking. Send for copies to the Central Manufactory, at Pittsburg, Pa., or to the nearest dealer in HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The BITTERS are sold in every city, town and village, and are extensively used throughout the entire civilized world.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.
A POLITICAL, LITERARY AND MISCELLANEOUS NEWSPAPER.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES,—started in September, 1851,—has for many years been recognized as among the most successful, popular and influential newspapers in the country. It is still under the control and management of its original founders, who, with greatly increased resources and experience, will spare no pains to extend and strengthen its claims upon the confidence and support of the public.

The TIMES is a Republican journal, and will be devoted, as in the past, to an intelligent support of the Republican Party. It will sustain, with all its ability, the principles and policy of General Grant's administration. It will advocate those measures by which the honor, the peace and the prosperity of the nation can be best conserved and promoted. It will vindicate our dignity before foreign nations, and will discountenance naught by which our self respect or our love for republican institutions could be endangered.

The TIMES desires to be judged by the highest possible standard of journalism. Its Editorial Department will be conducted in a spirit of fairness and impartiality, free alike from personal rancor or undue favoritism; and will be the production of the ablest and most experienced writers upon all the subjects treated. Its Correspondence will be full and timely. Its reports will be prepared with the utmost care, and will embrace every fact or public utterance of opinion that possesses interest and importance. The Literary Department will be in thoroughly capable hands, and will present a full review of the literature, the fine arts, the music, and the drama of the day.

As a family paper, free from all appeals to vulgar or immoral taste, the TIMES will continue unexceptionable, and may be safely admitted to every domestic circle.

The Sunday edition of the TIMES will include in addition to all the news, selected and original literary matter of the most varied and agreeable character.

The Weekly and Semi-Weekly editions of the TIMES will be compiled with the greatest care, and will contain selections from the most important contents of the Daily issue, besides matters of interest to the agricultural sections of the country. All who prefer a newspaper but once or twice a week will find these editions admirably suited to their requirements.

A special edition of the TIMES for European circulation will be published every Wednesday and Saturday, in time for the European mails, and will be valuable and welcome to our friends abroad, whether Americans or of any other nationality than our own.

All these editions of the TIMES are of the very largest size, on large quarto sheets, each containing fifty-six columns, printed in clear and legible type, at the following rates:

THE scarlet fever is now raging in this ighborhood, and in several cases has proved fatal. Great care should be taken by parents.

WE publish the prospectus of the Patriot another column. It is a valuable paper, d deserves support. Since the election it ues very irregularly, we are sorry to say.

PROF. PEALER and E. L. Davis of Fishcreek returned last week from a deer hunt Potter and Tioga Counties. They brought me three fine looking deer.

FRANKLIN L. SHUMAN has purchased the Hotel stand formerly occupied by B. F. Zarr. d will take immediate possession. The tter intends to move to town at once with s family.

WE learn that a few days ago Dayton Hartman of Buck Horn was attacked suddenly with aralysis of the lower part of the body and the legs. He is a mere youth, and no use can be assigned for the disease.

THE annual report of the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad is about ready to make s appearance. It will show a very favorable state of affairs, the business during the st year footing up near a million dollars.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Friday last a young an had his leg mashed at the mines opposite Shickshinny. It was amputated by Drs. antee and Hughes, and a few hours afterards the man died. We have not learned is name.

A NEW LANDLORD.—On Thursday of last eek Robr McHenry took possession of the ell known "Brick Hotel" at Orangeville. l'Henry knows how to keep a hotel and will ake a first class land-lord. We predict for im a large portion of the custom of the raveling public, and have no doubt he will eedily deserve it.

CONGRESS meets on next Monday. The ession should be productive of some good, s there is no election near at hand to be inuenced by their buncombe. The material terests of the country are suffering and hat body could afford much relief by prudent egislation. We fear, however, that its main usiness will be party legislation.

WE hope our subscribers will remember heir indebtedness to us, and bring or send he money at the coming sessions of Court. We have sent circulars to all who are in arears showing the amounts of their subscriptions. Though the individual amounts may e small, they foot up heavily in the aggregate.

ACCIDENT.—A freight train of ten cars as thrown from the track near Lime Ridge n Friday evening last. No person was inured, we understand. The regular down rain was somewhat delayed and passengers a the up train were obliged to return. The ccident was caused by the breaking of an xle.

It is generally acknowledged that our Job ffice is the most complete in the interior of he State, and we yield the palm to none in he quality or cheapness of the work done. All orders by mail will be attended to as promptly as if delivered in person. Our ype and presses are of the best quality and our workmen unsurpassed.

TEMPERATURE OF NOV. 1869 AT BLOOMSBURG.—Observed at sunrise.—Maximum 48° on the 17th; Minimum 22° on the 25th; Mean 33°. From the beginning of October o the end of this month the Ruler gave us a stron glesson of how gloomy this good world would be without sunshine. We had no Indian summer this fall. OB.

ON Wednesday last Gen. Ent and W. H. Jacoby took their respective oaths of office, and took formal possession of their quarters. Col. Freeze and Mr. Coleman have been efficient and popular officers, and return to the private ranks of life with the consciousness of having performed their duties honestly and creditably. Our best wishes accompany them and we hope and believe their successors will prove as able and popular

A GRATIFYING ANNOUNCEMENT.—The following statement of the Assistant Treasurer of the Methodist Episcopal Church Missionary Society will be read with interest:

"Receipts during the year ending October 31, 1869, $629,105.13; disbursements, $624,-79,40; balance in the treasury $4,325.75. The receipts include the balance in the treasury at the beginning of the year of $16,578.-Three months ago the treasury was in debt $150,000. This it has not only wiped out, but now has a balance remaining of over $4,000. The whole church will hear this announcement with the utmost gratification."

THIS wet, uncomfortable weather which we have experienced of late, brings vividly but unpleasantly before us the necessity of decent sidewalks. It is a disgrace to the town that there should be, in rainy weather, but two or three places where it is possible to walk dry shod. Every variety of pavement is represented within the town limits, but they only differ as to comparative badness. Cannot something be done in the premises? Failing all else will not some public spirited citizen call on some one of the many pedestrian traps with which the town abounds, and break an arm or leg and therefor sue the owner of the property? Certainly it would be disagreeable, but then have suffered greater things for the common weal.

FIRE ACCIDENT.—A boy by the name of Eugene Kelly, about 12 years of age was accidentally shot by Robert Hagenbuch aged 15 years, on Thursday afternoon, November 25th, at Light Street. Hagenbuch, who is a son of Benj. Hagenbuch, was firing an old musket, when it was suddenly discharged, the load striking Kelly on the hand which was in his pocket, and lodging in his groin, carrying with it and burying in the flesh one of his fingers and several pieces of wood from a fence through which it passed. Kelly lived but five hours after the accident. He was attended by Dr. J. R. Evans of this place, who did all in his power to save his life but in vain.

The boys were cousins, and no cause is known which would seem to show that the shooting was anything but accidental.

This is another sad warning to boys to avoid meddling with fire arms. Almost every week the papers contain some such sad event as we are now called on to chronicle.

Kelly was buried on Sunday.

SEND IN LOCAL NEWS.—A contemporary very appropriately requests that its friends throughout the county furnish it with the local news. The arguments it uses are strong ones, and we hope the readers of the COLUMBIAN will follow the advice given, and forward us all items of public interest. It says:

There is nothing that adds so much to the value of a county paper as a liberal supply of home news. Nothing is needed to so push this but for some person of ordinary intelligence in each neighborhood to send for publication whatever events of local interest may transpire. Many events may happen of local interest that some persons think not of sufficient consequence to send for publication; but it is a pretty good rule to lay down that whatever excites interest among the people of the neighborhood is a matter of sufficient interest for publication in the county paper. Whatever happens that people are sure to talk about, when they meet, will interest them if they see it in that paper. An unusually large crop, the sale of real estate, accidents of any character either to man or animals, an unusually large day's work or the thousand and one things that form the staple of conversation throughout the country, will contribute to make the columns of a country paper interesting and attractive. Send in your items, friends, and all our readers will thank you.

On last Tuesday afternoon, as Sheriff Millard was attending to his usual duties about the barn, word was sent to him by his wife that a young fellow had entered the jail in a complete state of destitution, and with the evident intention of remaining. He at once sought out his new tenant, who was indeed a pitiable object, being destitute of clothing, not having even a boot or shoe on his feet. He received with evident satisfaction such nourishment as was offered, but was either unable or unwilling to answer any questions as to where he came from, or how long he intended to stay. The Sheriff's wife kindly provided such clothing as seemed suited to his circumstances, and he now appears to be as contented in his new home as though he lived in a palace. Unless the Commissioners turn him out in the cold, he will probably remain in the jail for some time.

FOR some days past the roads have been in a terrible condition, but our friend "Cooney" Girton meets the emergency like a man by driving three horses abreast to his Omnibus. The mails, despite the roads, come in on time.

MUSICAL CONVENTION.—Our Musical readers will be glad to know that a Musical Convention will be held in Hazleton next week commencing Tuesday morning the 7th inst. to continue four days, closing Friday evening the 10th with a grand concert. Arrangements have been made to entertain singers from abroad free of expense. Parties preferring to stay at hotels can be accomodated at reduced rates. The terms for participating in the convention are fixed at $1.00 for gentlemen and 50 cents for ladies. Prominent professional singers have been engaged to sing at the concert, thus giving an opportunity of hearing the best music performed in an artistic manner. We hope Bloomsburg will be represented on the occasion, and show the people of Hazleton that our Musical talent will compare favorably with that of neighboring places.

THOSE who are prudent are continually finding places where they can safely lay up a spare dollar or two from time to time as an investment for the future. Even misers show some of this prudence. But a man who is sensible as well as prudent seeks a safe investment that will also prove remunerative. BAD PRACTICE.—You might as well expect to relieve and cure an inflamed eye by dusting irritating powders into it, as to expect to subdue and cure Catarrh (which is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air passages in the head) by the use of irritating snuffs or strong caustic solutions. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures Catarrh by its mild, soothing action, which subdues the inflammation and restores the natural secretion of the mucous follicles. The proprietor, R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, offers $500 for a case of Catarrh that he cannot cure. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Address the proprietor as above.

THE Alabama Claims are now up again for adjustment, and the British government has expressed itself desirous of an arbitration. Among the claims persistently pressed, are those of the ever-present and active J. C. Ayer & Co., for the value of shipments of Cherry Pectoral, Sarsaparilla, Ague Cure, and Pills, in transit for Oregon, Vancouver's Island and Russian America, destroyed on the Anna Schmidt off the coast of South America. So universal is the use of their remedies that they are afloat on almost every sea; and this firm is frequently caught between the upper and nether millstones of contending nations. But they are known to stand up for their rights, and to get them.—[Republican, Washington, D C.

As the Holidays are coming, we are making special arrangements to supply every one who reads our advertisement, with the most handsome and useful Holiday presents that can be thought of or wished for, and to enable them to procure them cheaply and expeditiously, we will give to any one who will become our Agent, One Hundred Free Tickets, enumerating some of the many different articles from which you can make your selection of Holiday presents.

For returning full clubs from these Free Tickets, accompanied by the cash, we will give the same extra premiums that we now give, just the same as if you had paid 10 cents for each one of your Tickets. We wish you to understand that not any other firm in the business can compete with us in any way whatever.

As this free ticket is only good for the Holidays, you must send in your orders before the 20th of January, 1870.

Address Parker & Co., Boston, Mass.

THE Universal Cry, "What shall I buy for Holiday Presents" can be answered best by Parker & Co., 98 & 100 Summer St., Boston, who have an immense variety of Holiday and useful articles, such as all kinds of Fancy Boxes, Writing Desks, Glove Boxes, Albums in Morocco and Gilt and Velvet bindings, real Morocco Shopping Bags, Furnished Reticules, Silver Plated Ware, and Cutlery and all descriptions Jewelry including imitations of the latest styles of solid gold, which cannot be distinguished from the real, &c., &c., and hundreds of the latest and most entertaining Books. Their stock contains almost everything necessary to supply the wants and gratify the tastes of everybody, and they claim that their superior facilities for buying these goods enables them to sell at very much under the regular prices paid for such articles. They want Agents everywhere, to whom they offer most liberal inducements. We call attention to their advertisement in another column.

INDIAN CONCERT.—The celebrated Troupe of Mohawk and Chippewa Indian Vocalists under the leadership of Prof. P. E. Flanders, will give one of their highly popular and interesting entertainments in Columbia Hall on Saturday Eve. Dec. 4th.

The Indians will appear in their native costume ingeniously ornamented with Beads, Silver Brooches, Golden Eagle feathers, Dyed Porcupine quills and all the Paraphernalia usually worn by the Red man in the wilds of North America. Let it be understood that the character of this entertainment is strictly moral and religious, and while they study to please, nothing will be introduced that can possible offend the taste of the most fastidious.

(N. B.) As their concert consists of sacred, secular and instrumental music, they place their principal reliance for patronage on the moral and religious portion of the community while the lovers of harmony and the merely curious will also experience a pleasure in listening to the "simple but sweet vocal notes wild" which are so characteristic of the red man.

We would advise our readers to go early so as to procure seats, as the Hall will undoubtedly be crowded. Doors open at 7 o'clock, exercises to commence at 8. Admission 35 cents, reserved seats 50 cents, children under 12 years of age 25 cents.

A FACT WORTH KNOWING, is that Miller & Wolf have on hand and for sale the choicest selection of Dry Goods in town. Mr. Wolf has lately returned from the city, with a well chosen lot of the best fabrics the market affords. A look at these goods will convince any reasonable person, that their establishment is the place for bargains. Their usual fine stock of Groceries and Provisions is fully up to the standard and they are well prepared for the Winter campaign.

WINTER GOODS.—McKelvy, Neal & Co. have just received a magnificent stock of Winter Goods, which they are prepared to offer at most reasonable rates. The assortment has been selected with great care, and embraces all the newest and most fashionable styles. Both fine and coarse goods of various grades, suitable to all classes of customers can be found on their well filled shelves. Persons intending purchasing should certainly inspect their stock from motives both of economy and of taste, as they will find no establishment in the County so fully prepared to give satisfaction.

MR. ECKERT, of Northumberland, proposes to open a dancing school in Columbia Hall, Bloomsburg, on Thursday evening, December 9th, 1869. Mr. Eckert is an accomplished teacher and musician, and we hope he may succeed in getting a good school.

A COUGH, COLD OR SORE THROAT

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

Requires immediate attention, as neglect often results in an incurable Lung Disease.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES will most invariably give instant relief. For Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Consumptive and Throat Diseases, they have a soothing effect.

Singers and Public Speakers use them to clear and strengthen the voice.

Owing to the good reputation and popularity of the Troches, many worthless and cheap imitations are offered, which are good for nothing. Be sure to obtain the true

THE ONLY RELIABLE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA IN THE KNOWN WORLD.

Dr. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial are a positive and infallible cure for dyspepsia in its most aggravated form, and no matter of how long standing.

They penetrate the secret abode of this terrible disease, and exterminate it, root and branch, forever.

They alleviate more agony and silent suffering than tongue can tell

They are noted for curing the most desperate and hopeless cases, when every known means fail to afford relief.

No form of dyspepsia or indigestion can resist their penetrating power.

DR. WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medical properties are retained. It invigorates the digestive organs and restores the appetite. It strengthens the debilitated nerves. It purifies and enriches the blood, and expels from the system the corruption which scrofula breeds on the lungs. It dissolves the mucus or phlegm which stops the air passages of the lungs. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs and throat, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain and subduing inflammation. It is the result of years of study and experiment, and is offered to the afflicted with positive assurance of its power to cure the following diseases, if the patient has not too long delayed a resort to the means of cure:—

Consumption of the Lungs, Coughs, Sore Throat, and Breast, Bronchitis, Liver Complaint, Blind and Bleeding Piles, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Diphtheria, &c.

A medical expert, holding honorable collegiate diplomas, devotes his entire time to the examination of patients at the office parlors. Associated with him are three consulting physicians of medical knowledge and eminence, whose services are given to the public FREE OF CHARGE.

This opportunity is offered by no other institution in the country.

Letters from any part of the country, asking advice, will be promptly and gratuitously responded to. Where convenient, remittances should take the shape of Great Shoshonees Remedy!

OF THE CELEBRATED INDIAN

DR. LEWIS JOSHEPHUS,

of the distinguished Tribe of Shoshonees, Columbia Territory is now for sale in the Union.

This all possessing great Indian remedy, is warranted, and in broad and emphatic language, we can surely say, may be relied upon to make a permanent cure of all diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive Organs, &c., &c., as well as scrofula, the various skin diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurity of the blood, exposure in the changes of Constitution.

Where this great remedy has been in use it has indeed effected some of the most marvelous cures ever recorded in the annals of historical medicine. Such being the case in addition to its former renown in Columbia Territory we defy humanity to dispute the fact that this Great Shoshonees Remedy is the remedy of remedies of the 19th Century, and the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.

ACTUAL CURE OF SCROFULA AND CONSUMPTION, BY THE

GREAT SHOSHONEES REMEDY.

Geneva, N. Y., 1869.

DR. YOUNG & BRO.—I desire to inform you that the marvelous effects of the Great Shoshonees Remedy in our family have been greater than any one could have expected. My daughter was afflicted with Scrofulous Consumption, and had an open Scrofulous Ulcer on the neck, she had a bad Cough, Pain in the Lung and severe Night Sweats. She was emaciated, Mucus and Blood, had no appetite, and was greatly exhausted. She was not able to get out even to church for more than a year. She was attended by physicians, and took Cod Liver Oil for nearly two years, but still continued to sink, and the doctor at last stated that recovery was out of the question, and that all he could do was to relieve her sufferings we felt expected her death, but were providentially induced to try a bottle of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, and, the effects being so marked, we of course continued to use it. She has taken six bottles, and the Ulcer on the neck, the Expectoration of Blood, the Night Sweats, Cough, Debility, &c., have all disappeared, and she pays to-day she has actually quite recovered her former health.

My niece from Elmira is also taking the Remedy for the same with good results. The discovery of such a Remedy is what has been long needed.

With Grateful Regards,
MRS. R. F. STAGG.

NAME THE TESTIMONY OF THE REV. DR. HANKINS.

I am well acquainted with Mrs. Stagg, and her daughter, who has used the Shoshonees Remedy! and can testify to the fullest confidence in their high standing, and to the reliableness of their testimony. JAMES HANKINS.

Rector of St. Peters Church Geneva, N. Y.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Pee-Wit.

A poor countryman, whose name was Pee-wit, lived with his wife in a very quiet way, in the parish where he was born. One day as he was ploughing with his two oxen in the field, he heard all on a sudden some one calling out his name. Turning round, he saw nothing but a bird that kept crying "Pee-wit! Pee-wit!" Now this poor bird is called a Pee-wit, and, like the cuckoo, always keeps crying out its own name. But the countryman thought it was mocking him, so he took up a huge stone and threw at it. The bird flew off safe and sound; but the stone fell upon the head of one of the oxen and killed him upon the spot. "What can one do with an odd one?" thought Pee-wit to himself as he looked at the ox that was left; so without more ado he killed him too, skinned them both, and set out for the neighboring town to sell the hides to the tanner for as much as he could get.

He soon found out where the tanner lived, and knocked at the door. Before, however, the door was opened, he saw through the window that the tanner's daughter was hiding in an old chest a friend of hers, whom she seemed to wish that no one should see. By and by the door was opened. "What do you want?" said the daughter. Then Pee-wit told her he wanted to sell his hides; and it came out that the tanner was not at home, and that no one there ever made bargains but himself. The countryman said he would sell cheap, and did not mind giving his hides for the old chest in the corner; meaning the one he had seen the young woman's friend get into.

Of course the maiden would not agree to this, and they went on talking the matter over so long, that at last in came the tanner, and asked what it was all about. Pee-wit told him the whole story, and asked whether he would give him the old chest for the hides. "To be sure I will," said he; and scolded his daughter for saying nay to such a bargain, which she ought to have been glad to make, if the countryman was willing. Then up he took the chest on his shoulders, and all the tanner's daughter could say mattered nothing; away it went into the countryman's cart, and off he drove. But when they had gone some way, the young man within began to make himself heard, and to beg and pray to be let out. Pee-wit, however, was not so soon to be brought over; but at last, after a long parley, a thousand dollars were bid and taken; the money was paid, and at that price the poor fellow was set free, and went about his business.

Then Pee-wit went home very happy and built a new house, and seemed so rich that his neighbors wondered and said, "Pee-wit must have been where the golden snow falls." So they took him before the next justice of the peace, to give an account of himself and show that he came honestly by his wealth; and then he told them that he had sold his hides for one thousand dollars. When they heard it, they all killed their oxen, that they might sell the hides to the same tanner; but the justice said, "My maid shall have the first chance;" so off she went: but when she came to the tanner, he laughed at them all for a parcel of noodles, and said he had given their neighbor nothing but an old chest.

At this they were all very angry, and laid their heads together to work him some mischief, which they thought they could do while he was digging in his garden. All this, however, came to the ears of the countryman, who was plagued with a sad scold for his wife; and he thought to himself, "If any one is to come into tronble, I don't see why it should not be my wife, rather than Pee-wit;" so he told her that he wished she would humour him in a whim he had taken into his head, and would put on his clothes and dig the garden in his stead.

The wife did what was asked, and next morning began digging. But soon came some of the neighbours, and thinking it was Pee-wit, threw a stone at her—harder, perhaps, than they meant,—and killed her at once. Poor Pee-wit was rather sorry at this; but still he thought that he had had a lucky escape for himself, and that perhaps he might, after all, turn the death of his wife to some account; so he dressed her in her own clothes, put a basket with fine fruit (which was now scarce, it being winter,) into her hand, and set her by the road-side, on a broad bench. After a while came by a fine coach with six horses, servants, and outriders, and within sat a noble lord, who lived not far off. When his lordship saw the beautiful fruit, he sent one of the servants to the woman, to ask what was the price of her goods. The man went and asked, "What is the price of this fruit?" No answer. He asked again. No answer. And when this had happened three times, he became angry, and, thinking she was asleep, gave her a box on the ear, when down she fell backwards into the pond that was behind the seat. Then ran up Pee-wit, and cried out and sorrowed, because they had drowned his poor dear wife; and threatened to have the lord and his servants tried for what they had done. His lordship begged him to be easy, and offered to give him the coach and horses, servants and all; so the countryman, after a long time let himself be appeased a little, took what they gave, got into the coach and set off towards his own home again.

As he came near, the neighbours wondered much at the beautiful coach and horses, and still more when they stopped and Pee-wit got out at his own door. Then he told them the whole story, which only vexed them still more; so they took him and fastened him up in a tub, and were going to throw him into the lake that was hard by. But whilst they were rolling the tub on before them towards the water they passed by an ale-house, and stopped to refresh themselves a little before they put an end to Pee-wit. Meantime they tied the tub fast to a tree, and there left it while they were enjoying themselves within doors.

Pee-wit no sooner found himself alone, than he began to turn over in his mind how he could get free. He listened, and soon heard, Baa, baa! from a flock of sheep and lambs that were coming by. Then he lifted up his voice and shouted out, "I will not be burgomaster, I say; I will not be made burgomaster." The shepherd hearing this went up and said, "What is all this noise about?" "Oh!" said Pee-wit, "my neighbours will make me burgomaster against my will; and when I told them I would not agree, they put me into this cask, and are going to throw me into the lake." "I should like very well to be burgomaster, if I were you," said the shepherd. "Open the cask, then," said the other, "and let me out, and get in yourself and they will make you burgomaster instead of me." No sooner said than done; the shepherd was in, Pee-wit was out: and as there was nobody to take care of the shepherd's flock, Pee-wit drove it off merrily towards his own house.

When the neighbours came out of the alehouse they rolled the cask on, and the shepherd began to to cry out, "I will be burgomaster now; I will be burgomaster now." "I dare say you will, but you shall take a swim first," said a neighbour, as he gave the cask the last push over into the lake. This done, away they went home merrily, leaving the shepherd to get out as well as he could.

But as they came in at one side of the village, who should they meet coming in by the other way but Pee-wit, driving a fine flock of sheep and lambs before him! "How came you here?" cried all with one voice. "Oh! the lake is enchanted," said he; "when you threw me in I sunk deep and deep into the water, till at last I came to the bottom; there I knocked out the bottom of the cask, and then I found myself in a beautiful meadow, with fine flocks grazing upon it; so I chose a few for myself, and here I am." "Cannot we have some too?" said they. "Why not? there are hundreds and thousands left; you have nothing to do but to jump in, and fetch them out."

So they all agreed they would dive for sheep; the justice first, then his clerk, then the constables, and then the rest of the parish one after the other When they came to the side of the lake, the blue sky was covered over with little white clouds, like flocks of sheep, and all were reflected in the clear water: so they called out, "There they are! there they are already!" and fearing lest the justice should get everything, they jumped in all at once; but Pee-wit jogged home, and made himself happy with what he had got, leaving his neighbours to find flocks for themselves as well as they could.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

Wintering Bees--A Wintering House.

Some propose wintering on their summer stands; some in cellars; and some say bury in the snow, or in the sand, or in a clump; while others say, build a house above ground expressly for the purpose. All may be right, and doubtless in the special locality, as the climate varies much in the territory over which the Journal circulates. This may, in some measure, account for the different opinions expressed. I have tried nearly all the plans above enumerated, and have found serious objections to nearly all of them. This winter I propose to winter my bees in a repository above ground, built on purpose. My objection to cellars is, they are frequently too damp, and it is difficult to move the hives down and up; and the bees are liable to be disturbed frequently by persons going down for potatoes, apples, &c. I have tried wintering in a clump or pit. I find that, in that way, the bees eat less, but the combs come out mouldy, and sometimes worthless. —Wintering on the summer stands requires more honey, nearly twice as much, as the bees are roused to activity every fine day; and a great many are lost in the snow, while many others are frozen stiff in the hive during long continued cold weather. Besides being hazardous, it looks careless to wiuter thus.

The house I am building is 12½ feet by 14½; sills raised on posts 8 inches from the ground. The lower joists are 2 by 10 inches, and run lengthwise. The centre ones are one inch lower than the sills. A rough floor is laid on the under side, then filled with saw-dust to top of the joists. I have a double inch floor on the top. The floor is cut in two in the centre, and the two parts do not meet by one inch, which opening will answer the double purpose of winter ventilation and as a vent to let water off from snow that I intend to pile in towards spring, (in a small hall, to be left in the centre) in order to lower the temperature when the cold begins to moderate.

The frame is put up with 2 by 10 scantling, weather boarded and battened on the outside, and lined on the inside.—The hollow wall all filled up with saw-dust. The joists above are 2 by 8, lined on the under side, and eight inches of saw-dust laid on top, through which an upward ventilator passes, reaching from the ceiling up through the roof of the house, and having at the bottom a regulating valve. I have a small window in one end, with glass and also blinds on the inside and outside; a double door, one each side of a frame, and in the winter a straw mattress will be placed between the doors.

Now, if any of my friends can suggest any improvement on the above plan, I would feel obliged.

I propose, in summer, to use the house for working my honey machine in, or for storing honey or any other work connected with bees, in summer. I have seventy swarms, and one hundred can be stored away in this house, in Thomas' hive, (and by the way that is the best hive and is all the go in Canada.)

With us, the past season will prove to be the poorest we have had for some time. It has been just the reverse of last summer—that is, too wet and cold. I fear very little surplus honey will be obtained. —A. C. ATWOOD.—Dunnville, Canada, in Am. Bee Journal.

GET AN EARLY BREAKFAST.—A bad custom is prevalent in many families, especially among the farmers, of working an hour or two before breakfast, attending to chores, hoeing in the garden, cutting wood and mowing. This is convenient on many accounts, but not conducive to health. The prevalent opinion is, that the morning air is the purest and most healthy and bracing; but the contrary is the fact. At no early hour is the air more filled with dampness, fogs and miasmas than about sunrise. The heat of the sun gradually dissipates the miasmatic influences as the day advances. An early meal braces up the system against these external influences. Every one knows the languor and faintness often experienced, for the first hour in the morning, and that it is increased by exercise and the want of food. Probably the best custom would be to furnish every member of the family especially those who labor out of doors, a cup of warm coffee, well mixed, immediately after rising from bed. Then let him attend to the chores, or mowing, hoeing, etc., for an hour or two, while the teams are feeding and the breakfast is preparing. They will feel better and do more. Agriculturist.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never since the days of Cotton Mather has any medicine been found which has given so universal satisfaction as this. Though a long list of the cures of it might be published from the most reliable persons in their communities, we forbear to do so, preferring to let it recommend itself to the sufferer's reason and observation. As a pectoral remedy, adapted to relieve the various affections of the throat and lungs, and subdue the alarming symptoms which lead to Consumption, it is thought invaluable by the most eminent physicians. Many of these, even in the advanced stages of cases which they themselves had given up, have found it to work wonders. Indeed, it has proved itself such a safe and reliable remedy, and so pleasant to take, that it is now employed in preference to any other medicine for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Sufferers from Pulmonary Complaints need great progression, and may be relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Public speakers will find it the best protection against hoarseness, and safeguard to the throat.

Many people are subject to Coughs, Colds, and Hoarseness, from the first inclemency of Autumn to the severest Winter weather, who can easily be cured of them by timely use of the Cherry Pectoral.

Singers and Actors should remove Hoarseness by the use of small doses of this Pectoral.

Clergymen, who are obliged to speak frequently, will find relief from its use.

Many cases of Whooping Cough are wonderfully relieved by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

Travellers in all climates know that we need not recommend it to them, but only caution them against buying the worthless counterfeits of other names, and ask the public that the genuine are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed the whole class of diseases which arise from the malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

This remedy has been in use for many years, and the many wonderful cures it has performed in the cases of the Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent Fever, Remittent Fever, Periodical or Bilious Fever, which arise from the poisonous miasm with which the air is filled, in the valleys of our great rivers, have rendered the name of the AGUE CURE known throughout all the countries bordering on the Mississippi and its tributaries. Indeed, wherever the disease prevails, this remedy has shown itself a perfect antidote for the poison, and counteracts its influence upon the system with such certainty that it may be relied on as a safeguard against the attack of the disease, if taken on the first approach of the premonitory symptoms, such as lassitude, weakness, loss of appetite, indigestion, and a slight chilliness in the limbs. Travellers or residents in miasmatic districts may thus fortify themselves against attack, and those who have suffered from the disease may be certain that a timely use of this remedy will prevent a return of it, and save them from the risk of a long train of consequent diseases, which always follow in the path of the Fever and Ague. Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, and Neuralgia, arising from the irritating effects of the poison, are speedily cured by it, and the system, thoroughly imbued with its virtues, will be proof against the disease for months and years. Those who live in districts where the Fever and Ague prevails, should not be without the AGUE CURE, as they never can tell when they may be attacked, and a dose taken in time will save them much suffering. Those who have once had the disease, and removed to other districts, should not fail to procure the AGUE CURE, as they are liable to have the disease return upon them, and a dose will prevent it. Those who are about to remove to districts where the disease prevails, should not fail to provide themselves with the AGUE CURE, as they will find it a safeguard against the disease, and a sure remedy for it, should they be attacked. Those who are suffering from the disease, should not fail to give the AGUE CURE a trial, as they may rest assured that it will cure them, and restore them to health. Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all round the world.
